LGBTQ allies holding dragon boat events

A group of county residents, in association with the local community social service providers, are hosting events to support lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgendered and queer youth and allies in the community. Paddling with Pride follows in the spirit of the February event at Baked and Battered also for LGBTQ supporters.

On Wednesdays until Sept. 9 from 6:45 to 8:30 p.m., the group is meeting to go dragon boating as a way to bring together friends, allies and champions of LGBTQ people. With this event, they hope to raise awareness and support inclusion.

If you are interested in more information or would like to participate, RSVP Amanda Tripp at Point in Time (amandat@pointintime.ca or 705-457-5345 EXT 318). Once you RSVP you will have location details.

They would like people to RSVP so they are able to know numbers as the dragon boat only holds 24 people.

If you are not into dragon boating but would still like to participate, RSVP and you can join in cheering for the boat.

BENEFIT ART EXHIBIT TO AID ANDRE LAPINE

Will Be Held Under Patronage of Lieutenant-Governor

Under the patronage of the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Bruce an exhibition and sale of works of art will be held on and after September 21, the proceeds of which will be devoted to assisting Andre Lapine, the distinguished artist, who has been a resident of Canada for 22 years and is an A.R.C.A., O.S.A. and member of the Water Color Society. Examples of Andre Lapine's work have on a number of occasions appeared in the rotogravure section of The Star Weekly.

Andre Lapine

On July 3 of this year Mr. Lapine was run down by a motor car and seriously injured. He underwent several operations and his condition is still grave. Other operations will be necessary before he can be considered out of danger. The "benefit" exhibition was started by the late C. B. Cleveland and a committee of friends.

Already some 30 works have been contributed from artists in all parts of Canada. These will be offered at moderate prices to make for a ready sale. The opening and private view of this exhibition will be held at the Toronto Art Gallery September 21, after which the pictures will be divided into two lots and exhibited for sale in the galleries of the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. and the Robert Simpson Co. Ltd., who are giving their galleries without charge. Charles S. Band is chairman of the committee.

Fireworks fundraiser rocks Big and Little Kennisis

Rock on the Dock, classic rock music by the Rockin' Bobs, was held Saturday, July 25 on Big and Little Kennisis Lake. The lake was invited to bring boats and tie off to each other, sit back and enjoy the music. Gary Bouwmeister put on the concert as a private lake event and the band played on his Tiki dock overlooking the lake, where many boats came to listen. Bouwmeister provided the band with the objective of raising money for the Aug. 1 fireworks on the lake. By the end of the afternoon they raised $950. The July 1 fireworks is sponsored by the lake association and the August long weekend is privately sponsored. Photos submitted

West Nile virus found in Lindsay

Lab results received by the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit confirm a batch of mosquitoes collected in Lindsay on July 23 have tested positive for West Nile virus.

As a result, the health unit is urging people to fight the bite of mosquitoes that can spread West Nile virus.

"There is no good time or reason to be bitten by mosquito, and that's especially true with this finding of West Nile virus and as we enter into the peak season for West Nile virus activity in August and September," says Richard Ovcharovich, manager of environmental health with the HKPR District Health Unit.

The finding of West Nile virus in this area is not unusual. In both 2013 and 2014, West Nile virus was also detected in mosquitoes trapped by the health unit. Typically, the risk of West Nile virus remains in southern Ontario until the first heavy frost in the fall, Ovcharovich notes.

To reduce their risk of West Nile virus, area residents are encouraged to:

- Cover up when outside by wearing light-coloured clothing such as long-sleeved shirts, jackets, long pants, hats and socks, especially between dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are most active. Applying federally-registered insect repellent on exposed skin (such as products containing DEET) is also recommended to limit exposure to mosquitoes.
- Clean up and remove any standing water around their homes, cottages or campsites. Mosquitoes need stagnant water to lay their eggs, and even small amounts such as that found in bird baths, old tires and unused containers like barrels will do. Adult mosquitoes also like to rest in dense shrubbery, so people should keep bushes and shrubs clear of overgrowth and debris.
- Compost piles should be turned on a regular basis as well, and local residents are advised to make sure homes and businesses are "bug tight" by ensuring windows and door screens fit tightly and do not have holes.

"Fight the bite of mosquitoes that can spread West Nile virus, whether you are at home, visiting the cottage or going camping," says Ovcharovich.

While most people who get West Nile virus do not experience any symptoms, a small number of individuals may develop flu-like symptoms such as high fever, severe headache, muscle weakness and stiff neck. In a few cases, people may develop more severe symptoms, including confusion, tremors and sudden sensitivity to light. People who suspect they have West Nile virus should seek immediate medical attention.

For more information about West Nile virus, call the Health Unit at 1-866-888-4577 or visit www.hkpr.on.ca.

Don't feed the animals

Living Large

Humour by Steve Galea

If you live or cottage here long enough, there comes a time when you begin feeding the wildlife. This is rarely intentional.

One day, you'll look out the window to see a deer eating the expensive shrubs you just planted or, perhaps, you'll walk into the kitchen to see a bear making an omelet or a hummingbird drinking straight from the orange juice jug. It could be anything in between too. The point is the local wildlife have discovered your place and think it's a diner.

So how do you end this? Here are 10 proven ways.

1. Urinate on all the new shrubs you bought. This won't actually keep the deer away, but it will remind you that you just pissed away all that money.
2. Walk out to the deer, bear, raccoon, hare or whatever and show them your hunting licence, Again, this doesn't really do much but it makes you feel good.
3. Walk up to the offending animal, lament the price of groceries and ask them to chip in. You'll never see them again.
4. Import water from Mexico. Water your shrubs with it. If it fails to deter them, at least you'll get free fertilizer.
5. Human hair in bags. A lot of people will tell you that you should just put clippings of human hair in onion skin bags and place them around the garden to fend off deer. Why not? You'll be pulling out your hair anyway.
6. Get a bunch of those dancing flowers, plant them in the garden and turn on a Kanye song every time deer approach. If the dancing flowers don't deter the deer or hares, the Kanye song probably will.
7. When a bear is in the neighbourhood, leave a pie, fresh out of the oven on the dining room table, turn off the lights and leave the door open. Then, when it walks in, start the old slide projector with the images of that family vacation to Disneyland in 1994. That'll teach it.
8. When going to deal with a hare in the garden, wear a pair of bunny slippers and calmly say, "I'll try not to kick you in the butt as hard as I did these guys."
9. Grow kale. No living creature actually enjoys eating kale.
10. If dealing with a particularly greedy chipmunk, get yourself one of those Planter's Peanut suits. It will then spend the rest of the summer trying to stuff you in its cheeks and leave everything else alone.

Highlands Opera appealing to wider audience

By Elizabeth Bate

Aiming for a high note this season, the Highlands Opera Studio opened Aug. 4 with a program calendar its directors hope will make the experience more accessible.

Beginning the season with concerts – Aug. 13 and 17 remaining – the group is trying to dispel the myth that opera is highbrow.

"It's not elitist, people love to sing and singing is singing," said general director Valerie Kuinka.

The show on Aug. 13 will feature songs from Broadway and Aug. 17 will highlight songs from film with special emphasis on The Sound of Music in honour of the movie's 50th anniversary. Selections in those concerts will include Henry Mancini's well-know theme from Breakfast at Tiffany's "Moon River" and "I dreamed a dream" from Les Mis, songs from Chitty-Chitty Bang Bang, as well as song from other famous movie and Broadway musicals.

"People will recognize the music," Kuinka said. "The art form isn't snobby. It's really about human emotion."

Kuinka said the small venue helps guests to experience the music they're hearing.

"They have the experience ... they didn't know the human voice could sound like that," she said.

Artistic director Richard Margison said the evening provides relaxed entertainment and unlike other opera or theatre experiences there is no dress code.

"You can wear your shorts or wear your tuxedo," he said.

The first of the season's two operas will be a production written by Canadian Tobin Stokes called The Vinedressers Aug. 19 and 21 which is set on Pelee Island. Margison says the story is short, just 90 minutes, is in English and has everything an audience would expect from an opera.

"It's got love, hate, murder and suicide," he said.

The other opera will be a modern dress production of the comedy The Marriage of Figaro Aug. 30, Sept. 1, 2 and 3.

Kuinka is directing the Italian production written by Mozart about a sleazy but wealthy womanizer and his servants.

Setting the show in Hollywood in 1978 and modelling the main characters after Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor, Kuinka says the story will be instantly recognizable to the audience.

"Everybody will be able to relate to the characters," she said.

Although the production is in Italian, it will have English surtitles to help the audience understand the words being sung.

The studio's performances give experience to those operatic artists enrolled in its professional training program. Students are chosen for the program each year by Kuinka and Margison. Kuinka says when they founded the program in 2007 their aim was to fill the gap between school and employment for opera singers.

"We noticed there was a hole for young people looking to join opera, especially for Canadian artists," she said. "We talked about 'wouldn't it be great to be able to help people within our industry?' and 'how do they get a chance to really sing on world stages?'"

Figaro was specifically chosen this year as a learning tool for those participating in the program. The production uses conversation between the operatic numbers in a different way, with performers singing the dialogue.

"It's very difficult for the singers, but very natural for the listener," said Kuinka. "It's very difficult and needs to be rehearsed a lot."

Kuinka says the Haliburton area has been really welcoming to program, and the eight seasons of performances have been well received.

"This has proven to be the most special and wonderful place to hold this," she said.

Kuinka says plans include expanding the group to include the Highlands Opera Theatre to run alongside the training program.

"We do aspire to build a separate professional company," she said.

Tickets are $34.50 for concerts and $37.50 for operas and can be purchased online at highlandsoperastudio.com.
